Fuel for thought – A Webinar

The demand for methanol is being pushed by regulatory pressures, both at the regional and international level.

Lloyd's Register is hosting a webinar which will introduce our new methanol report that covers the importance of safety considerations, supply, quality, carbon accounting and life cycle analysis of methanol. A panel of industry experts will evaluate ship operator demand and interest, as well as looking at the economic drivers behind methanol.

We will discuss the availability of onboard technology, including methanol-fuelled marine engines, conversions, fuel cells, tanks, and other systems. The panel will also participate in a live Q&A session.

This webinar introduces the first in the series of Fuel for thought reports and webinars that will cover a variety of topics related to the use of alternative fuels for ships.
